

RE at The Walnuts

RE helps students to reflect on their own strengths and difficulties and enables them to learn from how others may deal with life and its challenges.

RE can offer students space and time for calm, peace and reflection.

RE offers many opportunities for varied sensory explorations. For our students who experience the world very strongly through their senses, RE is a subject that lends itself very well to be mediated through direct sensory experiences.

RE links with the students' sense of emerging self and connects them with the world outside them. It helps build a sense of community and explores issues of care for self and others, rules and right and wrongs.

RE explores matters relating to spiritual growth and well-being, such as prayer, meditation and spiritual rituals.

Developing pupil's individual thinking and communication skills will support students to achieve maximum independence through learning life skills and enabling decision making.
